

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

The present invention provides the structural determination of a bromodomain determined by NMR spectroscopy. The present invention also provides a binding
5 partner for the bromodomain. In addition, the present invention provides methodology for related drug discovery using high throughput drug screening or structure based rational drug design using the three-dimensional data.